

Behind The Screen

August 6, 1991, the World Wide Web became open for public use.

It was fascinating, slow, but invigorating to explore;
communication, education, research, and navigation, but now something much more.

Social networking was brought to picture,
the internet now became much thicker.

People showing off, trying to get likes,
jealousy and hate take over, no more people being nice.

The screen became a shield, a cover for a coward,
the good parts of the internet are suddenly overpowered.

Bullying, tormenting, people harass,
will this terrible hatred ever pass?