

Universal Intaglement

by Celeste Nielson

I often draw constellations through my freckles
Wondering if it connects me closer to the universe
Am I a divine entity, worthy of cosmic entwinement?
How could any singular being reach such soaring levels—
I am blaring with beautiful illuminance
My value is innumeros

Individuals leave imprints
Individuals are deserving of celestial recognition
Ties to the universe are inherently mortal
It is learned through our existence
It thoroughly persists

Through intraconnection, humanity springs divine
